Major Changes to 2018 Hog Jam

by Theresa and Monte Krueger, Hog Jam Co-Founders

To all of our spectators:

We have changed how the run is going to work this year. This decision was not an easy one to make. We will not be leaving at noon sharp. We will not have an escort out of town by the Fire Department. No one had any idea this event was going to get as big as it has. We are grateful for everyone that has chosen to attend and spend the day with us. We are now in a situation because of how many people we have, that we have decided we can not provide the type of safety that everyone deserves.

We are hoping we will still have a lot of bikes, but now they will come to town and buy their poker sheet and shirt if they want one, hang out for a while or just leave. We are also hoping that you continue to come to town to talk with our guests, look at their bikes and continue to support us like you always have.

Please join us if you would like to, everyone is welcome and invited, you don't have to ride a bike.

There will be busy minions walking up and down 'main street' selling $10.00 poker sheets if you are interested. Buying a sheet is how you have a chance to win the door prizes: gas cards, Chamber bucks, gift certificates, gift cards, gift bags, plus others are up for grabs. The stops are on the back of the poker sheet, just go and get a stamp.

If this doesn't work for you that's okay. Please join us at the County Line Tavern, located on County Highway G. Kim will be serving her wonderful Hog Jam Buffet, she also donates $2.00 back to the Fire Department on every meal served. We understand everyone's disappointment with these changes, but for this event to continue we have to make these adjustments because of safety.

We would like to thank everyone that has supported us through the years and are hoping for more years to come.

Northwoods Notebook: All that food for 20 bucks?

by Larry Werner

Ann and I were assigned to packing bread when we showed up as volunteers at last week's Ruby's Pantry event.

"Don't put all buns in those bags," someone told us. So we tried to put sliced bread, English muffins and pita bread, along with hamburger and hot dog buns, in the plastic bags that would be piled at the end of the table holding all the food items people get to choose from for their $20 "shares."

We were amazed at how much food people get for 20 bucks - chicken breasts, brats, bacon, whole eggs and liquid scrambled eggs, half gallons of organic whole milk, chips, ham spread, potatoes (mashed and diced) and a whole lot more.

Many of the folks who loaded up their carts passed up several items of surplus food delivered by Ruby's Pantry trucks to the Elementary School for the monthly distribution.

"I can't eat that many potatoes," we heard at the potato station. But most folks seemed to be taking some of each item offered and struggled to load all the food onto the carts provided and into the boxes they brought to load.

We were invited to volunteer at the event by our friend Lori Bock, who has a way of getting me to do things. If it weren't for her powers of persuasion, I wouldn't be on the board of Enrichment Through Culture, the arts council Lori presides over as president, and I wouldn't be handling ETC's publicity or playing goofy characters in plays at the Cumberland Arts Center.

And I wouldn't have been at the Elementary School at 7:30 a.m. on July 7th packing and handing out food to the Ruby's Pantry customers.

Cumberland is one of many communities in Wisconsin and Minnesota where food is delivered by Ruby's Pantry to be sorted and handed out each month to people who want good food at very low cost from grocery stores that didn't sell it and are willing to give it to the non-profit organization. After three hours working with a couple dozen other volunteers, we were tired, but happy.

It feels good to do good.

There's a lot of that going on in this little town. Coming up next month is the annual fundraiser for Kinship of Cumberland and Turtle Lake. Shortly after moving to Cumberland, we were invited to attend that event. This is a small town, and we expected a small event. What we found were a couple hundred folks at a dinner and auction of several dozen items, and a live auction of cakes. One of those cakes went for almost a thousand dollars.

We learned later that the event raised more than $80,000.

A couple weeks ago, we went to The Taste in Cumberland. For $30 we got to sample food and drink from local restaurants. As we were being driven in a golf cart from where we parked about a mile from the Cumberland Golf Club, our volunteer cart driver told us 600 were expected for the event. Multiply that out, and you've raised $18,000 just from admissions for the Boys & Girls Club. In addition, there are auction items, a golf-ball drop and other ways to raise money for this very good cause.

People give in this town, and they get involved. That doesn't always happen in big cities.

As I mentioned, I was drafted onto the board of ETC and helped put on events at the Cumberland Arts Center (which was given to the arts council by the Ruppel family, by the way). At the first event I worked, I noticed people coming to the show who could not do steps to the lower-level restrooms. I volunteered to head up a campaign to raise $10,000 for a main-level handicap-accessible restroom at the former church.

We called it "Potties for the People" and kicked it off with a birthday party to celebrate ETC's 25th anniversary.

We raised about $50,000 and not only built that main-level restroom but expanded and renovated the lower-level restrooms.

Since I have a home in Eagan, Minn., where my kids and grandkids live, I was invited to be on the board of an arts organization there. It's a beautiful art park with sculptures, walking trails and an amphitheater for performances. The art park has a deficit and we conducted a campaign to raise $25,000 in the park's 25th year.

We raised less than $10,000 and are conducting another fundraiser Aug. 17.

Eagan's population is 66,428. Cumberland has a population of 2,170.

It's called The Island City. It could be called The Giving City.

partment, Barron County First Responders, Cumberland Ambulance and the North Memorial Helicopter all responded to the scene.

Library Happenings

by Rob Ankarlo, Director,
Thomas St. Angelo Public Library

Summer is one of the busiest but also the most beloved times of the year at the Thomas St. Angelo Public (TSAP) Library. Over the past few weeks, there have been a wide array of activities and events held at the library. Most recently the Phil Warner Band entertained families at the best yet attended Island City Music Concert Series on the eve of Independence Day. Thanks again to Ardisam for sponsoring the band, and Larry Werner, Deb Andries, and Jeanette Rydberg for organizing the event. Also, thank you to Custom Education Solutions, Cumberland TSAP Library Foundation and the many donors who sponsored the free book give away to the 75 youth who were in attendance.

The TSAP Library hosted some well attended author visits, two of these included William Kent Krueger and Scott Spoolman. Mr. Krueger, a Twin Cities resident, spoke on his Cork O'Connor mystery series. Mr. Spoolman, Madison resident and a former Cumberland student, gave a presentation on his book Wisconsin State Parks – Geology and Natural History. Author book signings were held at both events.

Author Victoria Houston will be speaking on her Loon Lake mystery series on Thursday, July 19 at 6:30 PM, author Shelley Tougas will be holding her presentation Everything Laura Ingalls Left out of her Novels and she will have her novel Laura Ingalls is Ruining My Life for signing on Thursday, August 2 at 6:30 PM and wildlife author/photographer Stan Tekiela will be presenting fascinating images and behaviors of loons on Thursday, August 9 at 6:30 PM. Mr. Tekiela will be also hold an author signing for his book called Fascinating Loons.

On the second floor, the Anna St. Angelo Children's Library has been buzzing with themes of bees, butterflies and other interesting facts of insects and animals. The theme is about to change and the youth are traveling Down Under to learn about Australian wildlife, Aboriginal art, and lyrics to many fun youth songs. The youth will surely have a "fair dinkum" Aussie experience. Upcoming youth lyceums will include Colossal Fossils on Thursday, July 25 at 10:00 AM and The Sound of Science on Tuesday, July 31 at 3:30 PM. (Adults are welcome too!) Also, Family Fun Friday will be held on Friday, July 20 from 3:30 – 5:30 PM. Youth and their families will be challenged to an Escape Box. Participants will solve many riddles to learn what codes are needed to open the box and find out what is inside!

Various activities held at the TSAP Library reach out to different segments of the community. We don't want youth and/or adult patrons not join because reading isn't their thing. The library staff is trying to incorporate events and activities that consist of entertainment and hands-on learning while keeping reading still a big part of it.

Thank you for including the TSAP Library into your summer schedule.

Opinion

By Craig Bucher

The heat has driven Sharon and I into the car for more drives around the area. The coolness and the peace and quiet of a drive down country roads helps us to put up with the heat and the high humidity. There are also some amazing sights to see as you drive around. I especially enjoy looking at the flower gardens some of our neighbors have created. The reds, blues, purple, and yellows of the flowers makes a great contrast to the surrounding green of the grass. It takes a lot of work to create and keep flower gardens but as Emerson put it they are a "ray of sunshine." For me, the flower beds represent all that is the very best in a world that can become dreary and threatening as we experience the problems that face us.

Monday was one of those dreary days as I watched the President of the United States embarrass all of us. I agree with Senator John McCain, as he characterized Trump's press conference, with Putin, as "one of the most disgraceful performances of an American president in recent memory. The damage inflicted by President Trump's naivety egotism, false equivalence, and sympathy for autocrats is difficult to calculate." He goes on to say that the summit in Helsinki was a "tragic mistake." Oh well, I think I will go out and "smell the roses" in my neighbors flower bed.

SEE YOU NEXT WEEK!

Competency based education can help close Wisconsin's workforce gap

RHINELANDER, WI: You know you've entered a different kind of campus when a roadway sign at Nicolet Technical College warns motorists of an approaching crossway for both people and bears.

Bears aren't signing up for classes at Nicolet, which is spread over a heavily forested site in north-central Wisconsin, but roughly 2,000 students are enrolled there and thousands more people attend events or courses during a typical year.

Part of what draws them to Nicolet is a flexible approach to learning and training that helps students along their diverse career paths while recognizing that employers need to know they're hiring workers who understand the basics of their trade.

Nicolet is on the way to a broader adoption of "competency-based education," an approach that awards college credit based on competency versus classroom time. It is a system that values demonstrated knowledge, skills and abilities over "seat time," and which allows for learning to take place online, in hands-on settings or in the classroom at starting times outside a traditional semester structure. Not only is competency-based education taking root at Nicolet, which began phasing into specific programs in January, but in other colleges and universities in Wisconsin.

"In our district, we have to find a way to upscale existing employees ... and we have to find a way to do it without them feeling they need to leave their jobs to do so," Nicolet President Richard Nelson told a July 10 meeting of the Wisconsin Technology Council.

Nelson noted the standard credit-hour approach to higher education was born of an early 20th century Carnegie Foundation movement to better track how professors were compensated. The so-called "Carnegie Unit" wasn't driven by what educational methods worked best for students, but how to bring order to pay and retirement calculations.

Today, the needs of students and employers alike often call for learning and certification paths that recognize the balancing act of work, family and education. At Nicolet, for example, competency-based education appears to be the right path for students engaged in trades such as automotive technology, welding and culinary arts. It could spread to about 60 percent of the campus in time.

One returning student who benefited from Nicolet's flexible approach to learning was Nancy Brekke-Jones of Rhineland, who finished among the top 12 finalists in this year's Wisconsin Governor's Business Plan Contest.

Brekke-Jones, of Rhineland, had come up with an idea for a "no-tie" Velcro strap that could replace shoelaces on any shoes, primarily to help children and adults who have trouble tying shoes. Her idea for a hook and loop system, now patented, was a result of 26 years of experience in the footwear industry.

She realized she needed to learn how to turn that idea into a business, however, and went to Nicolet for help.

"I wasn't sure where I was going to go for a business plan. At first, I really didn't have a clue," Brekke-Jones said.

She signed up for a class on entrepreneurship at Nicolet, started it within a week of enrolling, took advantage on online resources as well as guest speakers, and started down a path that led her to emerging from a field of 200 contestants in the 2018 statewide business plan contest.

Not only is her business, Replace-A-Lace, gaining traction, but she's been invited to help teach other students at Nicolet.

"I think the entrepreneurial spirit is very much alive here," Brekke-Jones said. "I was able to learn a great deal that helped me with my business."

In parts of Wisconsin, as well as other states, workforce shortages threaten to hold back the economy. Even with efficiencies brought on by technology, there aren't enough people in the talent pipeline to replace retiring workers or to supply growing companies in specific business sectors.

If competency-based education helps to remove some of the barriers that prevent people from getting the skills they need to advance their careers, perhaps more students can reach the workforce faster and better prepared to contribute to employers, their communities and beyond.

Still is president of the Wisconsin Technology Council. He is the former associate editor of the Wisconsin State Journal.

James F. Donnerbauer, 68, of Ridgeland, has been charged with criminal trespass, disorderly conduct, operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, 1st and two counts of felony bail jumping. (Failure to comply with the terms of his bond by committing a new crime).

According to the criminal complaint, on Monday, July 9, 2018, at approximately 4:10 p.m. Barron County Sheriff's Deputies responded to 13 1/2 Street in Ridgeland, for a report of a subject who had driven his car into a garage on the property and was causing a problem. Upon arrival Sgt. Beranek made contact with the homeowners, who advised that he and his brother have a very large dairy farm and one of the residences on the farm is located on 13 1/2 Street.

Sgt. Beranek observed a vehicle that had struck and run into the garage. He spoke with the female home owner, who said that she was inside the barn when she saw the vehicle drive in and a male subject, who was later identified as James F. Donnerbauer, jump out of the vehicle. She said the vehicle was still moving when Donnerbauer jumped out and then ran into the garage.

She said that Donnerbauer threw his arms in the air very upset and yelled at her. She became scared so she went back into the barn and called her husband and her two brothers-in-law. She also contacted one of their neighbors. The neighbor came to the residence. While she was in the barn, she observed Donnerbauer walk into the residence without consent. She estimates he was inside the residence for approximately three minutes. The neighbor went inside of the residence and escorted Donnerbauer out of the home.

Upon his arrival, Deputy Jilek made contact with Donnerbauer. Deputy Jilek asked what was going on and Donnerbauer said he ran out of gas.... He then asked him if he had struck the garage on the property and Donnerbauer said he had coasted into it.

Deputy Jilek asked Donnerbauer if he went into anybody's house. Donnerbauer pointed to the residence behind him and said he went into that house. He indicated he had consumed four or five beers a couple of hours earlier and had been drinking in Ridgeland and his home. Deputy Jilek observed Donnerbauer to be unable to sit still and was very fidgety, having to move all over and appeared to be unsteady on his feet. Deputy Jilek asked Donnerbauer if he had any controlled substances such as methamphetamine, and Donnerbauer said he had. He said he had smoked methamphetamine out of a pipe that morning and again that afternoon.

Deputy Jilek asked Donnerbauer to perform field sobriety tests, which he agreed to do, but which he failed to perform satisfactorily. Deputy Jilek formed the opinion that he was under the influence of an intoxicant and/or controlled substance and placed him under arrest.

If convicted Donnerbauer may be fined not more than $31,000 or imprisoned for not more than 13 years, or both. His preliminary hearing will be held July 19, 2018.

Matthew M. Ostenson, 48, of Rice Lake, has been charged with obstructing an officer and felony bail jumping. (Failure to comply with the terms of his bond by committing a new crime).

The criminal complaint states that on Thursday, July 5, 2018, at approximately 10:15 a.m. Rice Lake Police Officer Reinikainen was advised that they had received a call from a subject that stated he was sorry and then hung up.

Dispatch informed Officer Reinikainen that they were able to determine that the call came from the area of the Rice Lake Dam, and that Rice Lake Police Officers had recently been dealing with Ostenson, in the area of the Dam, as he had been intoxicated and was committed for mental health on July 2, 2018.

Office Reinikainen and other officers responded to that location and Officer Jondreau located Ostenson walking away from Officer Jondreau.

Officer Reinikainen made contact with Ostenson and detected a strong odor of intoxicants coming from him. Ostenson began to cry and made statements about trying to kill himself by asphyxiation. He said he was going to use chemicals to do so.

Officer Reinikainen and Sgt. Larson, searched him and did not find any chemicals. Ostenson said he had money and was going to buy the chemicals.

Ostenson said he wanted to go to Sacred Heart Hospital as his doctor is there and he would feel safe there. Officer Reinikainen contacted Northwest Connections and transported Ostenson to Lakeview Medical Center.

An emergency commitment was eventually authorized, but Ostenson said he would only go to Sacred Heart and that he would not be cooperative if he went somewhere else. Officer Reinikainen stayed with Ostenson until approximately 1:45 p.m. when he was medically cleared to be transported, and final arrangements were made to transport him to Northwood Mental Health in Marshfield.

Officer Reinikainen transferred Ostenson to the Rice Lake Police Department pending transfer to Northwood, and Officer Koenig had been called in from off-duty to transport him to the medical facility. Ostenson told Officer Koenig that the suicidal comments he made that day, and the ones he had made surrounding his previous commitment, were a ploy so he could be transported to Sacred Heart where his girlfriend is a patient.

After being informed of this Officer Reinikainen spoke with Ostenson and his demeanor had completely changed and he appeared happy. Officer Reinikainen asked Ostenson if what Officer Koenig had said was true and Ostenson said that the incident was a ploy so that he could visit his girlfriend at Sacred Heart.

Officer Reinikainen said the Ostenson's conduct tied up police resources for approximately five hours and wasted hours of medical and crisis time as well.

If convicted Ostenson may be fined not more than $20,000 or imprisoned for not more than six years and nine months, or both. His preliminary hearing will be held July 19, 2018.

Lisa M. Olson, 35, of Cameron, has been charged with attempting to flee or elude a deputy, possession of drug paraphernalia, and failure to install an ignition interlocks device.

The criminal complaint states that on Thursday, July 5, 2018, at approximately 9:47 a.m. Barron County Sheriff's Deputy Jilek overheard over the radio that Chief Lynch of the Cameron Police Department was attempting to catch up to a vehicle that had taken off from a residence at a high rate of speed. Chief Lynch advised that the vehicle was eastbound on 15th Avenue.

Deputy Jilek responded to the area, and over the radio he could clearly hear Chief Lynch's sirens. Chief Lynch reported that the vehicle was traveling at a high rate of speed and that at one point Chief Lynch lost sight of the vehicle and had to take an alternate route to find the vehicle. Chief Lynch provided a description of the vehicle and the registration plate number.

Deputy Jilek responded to the intersection of 21 1/2 Street and 17 1/2 Avenue and observed a vehicle which matched that description come to an abrupt stop past the stop sign at the intersection and turn westbound on 17 1/2 Avenue. The vehicle passed Deputy Jilek and he did a U-turn and immediately activated his emergency lights. The vehicle accelerated heavily away from him and he activated his siren and attempted to catch the vehicle.

Deputy Jilek reached speeds over 80 miles an hour on 17 1/2 Avenue, which is a 45 mile per hour zone, and the vehicle was still able to get ahead of him. As the pursuit continued the road turned into 17 1/4 Avenue, and Deputy Jilek again reached speeds in the upper 70s and was able to slightly close the difference between the vehicles.

The vehicle stopped at the intersection of 17 1/4 Avenue and County Trunk Highway SS. The vehicle turned northbound on County Trunk Highway SS, heading toward Rice Lake, and again accelerated heavily. Deputy Jilek observed the vehicle use the right shoulder of the roadway to pass another vehicle. Deputy Jilek reached approximately 82 miles per hour, again in a posted 45 mile per hour zone, and the vehicle was maintaining its distance from him.

The vehicle approached the Lake 7 movie theater, slowed, and turned into their driveway, and then pulled around behind Molberg Electric and the smoke shop. As the vehicle came to a stop in that area it was drifting sideways in the gravel.

Deputy Jilek observed a lone female occupant exit the drivers' seat of the vehicle and run from the vehicle. Deputy Jilek exited his vehicle and yelled several times for her to stop. Deputy Jilek chased the female subject approximately 50 yards on foot before she finally stopped and complied with orders. The subject was identified as Lisa Olson.

Deputy Jilek searched Olson's person, and located a glass smoking device in her back left pants pocket, which he recognized as a device used for smoking controlled substances. She later admitted that the pipe was used to smoke marijuana.

Deputy Jilek interviewed Olson, who made multiple comments about her frustration with police. She said "every time she pulls out, they're up your butt." She made numerous, at times convoluted, statements suggesting that she was screwing up, not thinking clearly, frustrated, etc.

Deputy Jilek asked her why she would take off, as she had a valid license, and she said she couldn't give a logical answer. He asked if it was because she was frustrated with the Cameron cops, and she stated it was.

Olson acknowledged that at some point she saw red and blue lights behind her, but did not know where specifically. She commented on how colorful they were.

Olson denied knowing that the Cameron police were trying to stop her, but also said that she called her boss "to tell him that she's in some...now doing something stupid." She also said "she doesn't have anything to hide besides being a retard and running away."

She further stated that the vehicles in front of her were trying to hit her, because they were braking. Deputy Jilek advised her that the cars in front of her were not trying to hit her, and they were just going about their business. She believed the vehicles were trying to stop the chase.

A review of her driver's record reflected that Olson was required to have an ignition interlock device installed until November 28, 2022. She told Deputy Jilek that she did not have a "Breathalyzer" installed on a vehicle because she was trying to save up to get one.

If convicted Olson may be fined not more than $11,100, or imprisoned for not more than four years and one month. Her driver's license may also be suspended for not more than five years and six months. Her preliminary hearing will be held July 19, 2018.

Bert Skinner; Cumberland Athletic Hall of Fame 2018 Inductee

Cumberland High School will be inducting four new members into their Athletic Hall of Fame on Saturday evening, October 6. Tickets will be available for the event in September. "This is our fifth year of honoring some of the outstanding individuals that have been part of Cumberland High School athletics over the past 100 years," said Committee member Ritchie Narges. One of those inducted this year will be former athlete/coach, Bert Skinner.

Skinner graduated from Cumberland in 1969 after earning varsity letters in football, basketball, and track. A quarterback in football and a guard on the basketball team, Skinner would go on to earn All-Conference and All-Northwest recognition in both sports. In track, he would eventually hold the School Record for his discus throw for 12 years, before it was beaten. His senior year, he was named the winner of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce Sportsmanship Award.

His would move on to play basketball at UW-Baron County, where he was a member of the Northern Division Championship team, but his attempts to play College football at first UW-Stevens Point and then UW-River Falls would unfortunately end following an illness and later a knee injury.

Skinner would move on to teaching and coaching, first at New Richmond, where he coached football, basketball, and baseball and then back to his alma mater. Here, his coaching would continue, as he would spend time in the volleyball program and served as the Head Coach for both the Girls and Boys Basketball programs, twice leading the boys to the Regional Championship games.

An excellent Elementary Physical Education teacher, Skinner would be named by both the New Richmond and Cumberland School Districts as an "Outstanding Young Educator," during his time there. Currently, Skinner serves the community as Mayor and as a member of the County Board.

"Bert Skinner fits our criteria in many areas, first as an excellent athlete, secondly as a coach, and finally for his involvement in the community as an alumnus. We congratulate him and look forward to his induction on October 6," added Hall of Fame Committee member Nancy Scharhag.

Spring turkey harvest sees 10 percent decline from 2017

Preliminary totals show turkey hunters registered 38,885 birds during the 2018 spring turkey hunting season in Wisconsin, a 10 percent decrease from the spring 2017 season.

Weather this spring played a significant role in the decreased harvest numbers. With much of the state covered in snow at the beginning of the season, we saw a steep decline in the number of turkeys registered during the Youth Hunt and Period A. The remaining time periods had similar harvest to last year, with a slight decline in Period F when record high temperatures were recorded throughout the state.

"Unfortunately, turkey hunters experienced less-than-ideal conditions during the Youth Hunt and first period," said Mark Witecha, upland wildlife ecologist for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources. "We saw declines in hunter participation in all zones early in the season, so it appears many were deterred by late winter weather that impacted the state."

A total of 138,544 harvest authorizations were awarded through the drawing and 74,237 were sold over the counter. Overall, there were 325 more harvest authorizations issued this season than in the 2017 spring season.

Zone 1 produced the highest overall turkey harvest at 11,235 birds, followed by Zones 2 and 3, where hunters registered 9,471 and 8,699 turkeys respectively. Overall, the statewide success rate was 18.3 percent, compared to 20.4 percent in 2017.

The 2018 spring season started on April 14 with the Youth Hunt. The regular season ran from April 18 to May 29 with six separate time periods. Having separate time periods allows for maximum hunter opportunities, with a minimum amount of interference while ensuring that harvest does not lead to population declines. Biologists in Wisconsin closely monitor harvest, hunter interference rates, and hunter satisfaction along with other information to track turkey populations through time, to maintain a successful and enjoyable spring turkey hunt, and are always vigilant that harvests be sustainable.

2018 fall turkey hunting: Starting in 2018, the fall turkey drawing has been waived. A fall turkey harvest authorization will be issued with every fall turkey or conservation patron license purchase. Hunters will choose a zone at the time of purchase for which their harvest authorization will be valid. Bonus harvest authorizations, formerly known as leftover tags, will be available for purchase in select zones starting Aug. 18 at 10 a.m.

The fall 2018 wild turkey season for Zones 1-5 is September 15 to January 6, 2019. For Zones 6 and 7, the season is September 15-November 16.

The 2018 Fall Turkey and 2019 Spring Turkey regulations are included in the 2018 Wisconsin Small Game Hunting Regulations, available now online and at license vendors around the state.

With boating season in full swing the Cumberland Fire Department offers these safe boating tips

No matter how much experience you have, it's always a good idea for everyone to review boating safety rules before departures. At the end of the day we all want to come home and that's why Cumberland Fire and Rescue wants you to review these 10 basic boating safety tips to help you stay safe and have fun:

1. Be Weather-Wise. Always check local weather conditions before departure; TV and radio forecasts can be a good source of information. If you notice darkening clouds, volatile and rough changing winds or sudden drops in temperature, play it safe by getting off the water.

2. Follow a Pre-Departure Checklist. Proper boating safety includes being prepared for any possibility on the water. Following a pre-departure checklist is the best way to make sure no boating safety rules or precautions have been overlooked or forgotten.

3. Use Common Sense. One of the most important parts of boating safety is to use your common sense. This means operating at a safe speed at all times (especially in crowded areas), staying alert at all times and steering clear of large vessels and watercraft that can be restricted in their ability to stop or turn. Also, be respectful of buoys and other navigational aids, all of which have been placed there to ensure your own safety.

4. Designate an Assistant Skipper. Make sure more than one person on board is familiar with all aspects of your boat's handling, operations, and general boating safety. If the primary navigator is injured or incapacitated in any way, it's important to make sure someone else can follow the proper boating safety rules to get everyone else back to shore.

5. Develop a Float Plan. Whether you choose to inform a family member or staff at your local marina, always be sure to let someone else know your float plan. This should include where you're going and how long you're going to be gone.

A float plan can include the following information:

- name, address, and phone number of trip leader
- name and phone number of all passengers
- boat type and registration information
- trip itinerary
- types of communication and signal equipment on-board, such as an Emergency Position Indicating Radio Beacon (EPIRB) or Personal Locator Beacon (PLB)

6. Make Proper Use of Lifejackets. Did you know that the majority of drowning victims are the result of boaters not wearing their lifejackets? Make sure that your family and friends aren't part of this statistic by assigning and fitting each member of your on-board team with a life jacket prior to departure. Wear it!

7. Avoid Alcohol. Practice boating safety at all times by saving the alcohol for later. The probability of being involved in a boating accident doubles when alcohol is involved and studies have shown that the effects of alcohol are exacerbated by sun and wind.

8. Learn to Swim. If you're going to be in and around the water, proper boating safety includes knowing how to swim. Local organizations, such as the American Red Cross and others, offer training for all ages and abilities. Check to see what classes are offered in your area.

9. Take a Boating Course. Beginning boaters and experienced experts alike need to be familiar with the boating safety rules of operation. Boater education requirements vary by state; however, some require validated completion of at least one boating safety course. Regardless of your individual state's requirements, it's always important to be educated and prepared for every circumstance that might arise. You can learn boating safety rules by taking a local community course or online course to help educate yourself.

10. Consider a Free Vessel Safety Check. Take advantage of a free vessel safety check from the US Coast Guard. They offer complimentary boat examinations to verify the presence and condition of certain safety equipment required by state and federal regulations. Free of charge, they'll provide a specialist to check out your boat and make helpful boating safety tips and recommendations. They also offer virtual on-line safety checks as well.

Anything for a Salmon

Hello friends,

Perhaps the most daring, boring, physical, and when successful, rewarding game that I play is attempting to fish salmon out of a canoe on Lake Michigan by paddle trolling. Though I know that other people do it, I have never seen anyone fishing out of a canoe in this manner.

I started doing this about 20-years-ago. I generally give it one try a year and most of the time I do a lot of my fishing after dark as there is less wind and boat traffic. On average I catch about one salmon every other outing and my best was twice I caught three.

Monday, June 4th

High 74, low 53

Port Washington is a very cool town, has an excellent port and last year I caught three coho in one day fishing there. This early evening I was incredibly excited as I began paddling my 16-foot Alumacraft out to sea. I would be using two rods rigged with a dodger/fly combination and though the bite had been slow in the area, I figured if I put in enough hours I would have at least one chance.

That one chance did not materialize, as an hour before dark and a mile from shore a pop up storm hit me that was mostly wind and it was taking me to the state of Michigan. I did a quick about face and began the, blow your arms out, job of heading to shore in three-foot waves. Someone must have seen my plight as before long a crew in a Coast Guard boat appeared out of nowhere and followed along side of me until they were convinced I could handle the job.

The following morning after sleeping in the front seat of The Chevy Hotel east winds kept me shore bound and I headed home.

Friday, July 6th

High 83, low 57

There is a lot of salmon fishing pride at the port of Sheboygan and 32-days after my first attempt I would give Sheboygan another try, and I have to tell you for a good week I could not get the thought of being pulled around in my canoe by a big fish off my mind.

I sit on a cooler, I have a large cooler with ice in it to put my catch and I have a dry box. I use a 2x6 that I attach to my gunnels that has three rod holders on it and I also have a propane lantern mounted to that.

Some bad luck came my way right at the landing when I talked to a fisherman who was trailering his boat because it was too windy, and his wife had become ill.

No problem I am Mark Walters, I can do anything. So I exit the harbor and there is a solid breeze causing steady rollers and I work my way southeast. That plan did not work out as I believe there were a whole bunch of commercial fishing nets in the area and it was a pretty good sized task to dodge them.

The rollers were taking me south, it was getting dark and I was maybe two-miles from shore when I started heading north. I was wearing long pants and a life vest and I was soaked as each wave splashed me just a tad. Long story short, at 11:30 one drowned rat exited his canoe, stripped off his pants and sat in the Chevy Hotel until 3:00 a.m.

Saturday July 7th

High 84, low 57

As I paddled three-miles straight east in total darkness this morning I can guarantee you one thing. Every boat load of people was talking about the "nut job" in a canoe trying to catch a salmon. For 7 hours I pulled on the kayak paddle and did the same speed as my neighbors in both private and charter boats.

There were times when I was in so much pain that I thought I gonna lose it. Pain comes from sitting on a cooler with a back that has some issues and knowing that if you stop paddling your lines are gonna get messed up. Checking your lines has to happen as they get fouled, pick up vegetation, or in the case of my only fish being an alewife that my glow spoon had snagged.

I did not see a net go down as in any of my neighbors catching a fish but at the fish cleaning station some of the fishermen had 1-5 per boat and about half had the same as me.

I have come to realize that I need to stay somewhere for at least two days and fish maybe six hours at a time as this sport kicks my behind. Taking breaks in a truck does not work.

Catching salmon out of a canoe is indescribable. First the line is screaming off your reel, actually first, for about a million hours you get worn out and sometimes big waves make you wanna cry for help that you know is not coming.

When Mrs. Big starts pulling you around and you have to figure out how to get your other line in and then you have to net or gaff it and then it wants to beat you up as you are both on the floor of your canoe. When that dandy from the deep is flopping in the box, then you know you put on your Big Boy Pants and accomplished something.

I am going back with a full moon!

The fish cleaning station at Sheboygan is a popular place on Saturdays.

Glow spoons are popular for salmon. This one snagged an alewife.

To The Father Who Walked Into My Work With His Three Kids...

You ordered large fruit punches all around. The kids were so happy. You asked about our adobo pizza, said the kids were interested, I told you you wouldn't regret it. The little one asked for a mini adobo fried rice omelette. You said whatever she wants.

I asked if anyone wanted anything else. The big kid wanted the lechon sisig cheese fries. You said before anything else, what was my total at. I told you about $34. You politely said no, that would be it. I noticed the two $20s you had crumpled in your hand.

My father, raised me and my brother pretty much by himself and even though we struggled, he always made sure we ate. I lost him last year. Now I don't know if these kids' mother was not in the picture, or just at work or something, but it was just so nice to see a father being good to his kids.

I wish I could have given you those lechon sisig cheese fries. But all I could do was keep those fruit punches coming to your kids, who were chugging them down enthusiastically, but being so polite. I wanted to just take those fruit punches off your tab; I would have paid for them myself (I wouldn't steal from work) but the owner was right there. I then wanted to give you big jumbo cups to go so your kids could take home all the fruit punch they wanted (something we offer to those who ask.) but I was rushed to cash you out.

All I could do was give you the best service I could, despite it being busy and other customers being demanding, and say, "Happy Early Father's day" when I cashed you out. I hope that was enough to show you how much just you and your three angels' presence made my day.

But the look in your eye when you said, "Thank you, I really appreciate it," told me that you sincerely did.

"Showing Courage"

By: Deacon Steve Linton
St. Anthony Catholic Church, Cumberland

In our Gospel reading from Matthew 15:21-28, for the Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time, we hear the story of the Canaanite woman. Knowing who Jesus is and having heard of His great power to heal the sick, she shouts out to Him, "Sir, Son of David, take pity on me. My daughter is tormented by a devil." Jesus, who hears her cry, chooses not to answer her. She must have been a persistent woman, because even the disciples plead with Jesus to give her what she wanted because she kept shouting after them as well. In her persistence, she kneels at the feet of Jesus and says, "Lord, help me." Jesus replies, "It is not fair to take the children's food and throw it to the house-dogs." Jesus is referring to the fact that the woman is from Canaan, and not from the house of Israel. Not to be deterred, the Canaanite woman tells Jesus, "ah yes, sir; but even house-dogs can eat the scraps that fall from their master's table."

What courage it must have taken for this woman to stand up to Jesus and respond the way she did. How many of us in our lives have knuckled under to the challenge of our place or position in life? How many of us, when our faith has been tested, have turned our backs to God and slumped away at the challenge? I know this can be a struggle for all of us at times. Especially when the plans and events of our lives are not going exactly as we expected them to. In those times when we feel like we are being challenged by life and God has abandon us. Even in our daily lives, when our faith is being tested by the desires, pressure and will of our secular society, it is difficult to stand up and profess what we believe to be scripturally and morally right. To take our place beside God, and for God, and state clearly what we believe. It takes great courage and determination to develop a will to proclaim our faith when challenged by life's circumstances or by others.

This is the beauty of the story of the Canaanite woman. Jesus put her faith to the test. She believed in the power Jesus had to cure her sick daughter. She was not going to be deterred. She stood strong in her faith in Jesus and delivered what I think is one of the greatest comeback lines ever recorded. "Ah yes, sir; but even house-dogs can eat the scraps that fall from their master's table." She believed. She stood up to the challenge. She persisted in presenting her need to Jesus. She showed great courage. And for that courage Jesus responded; "Woman, you have great faith. Let your wish be granted."

Peace be with you all.

Rice Lake Community Health Foundation offers matching grant funds

The Rice Lake Community Health Foundation (RLCHF) is soliciting applications for matching grant funds. Any non-profit organization that provides health-related services to residents of the greater Rice Lake area is invited to submit a request by August 6, 2018.

The Rice Lake Community Health Foundation (RLCHF), established in 2008, was able to provide $192,200 in matching fund grants to health-related organizations in 2017/2018.

Matching funds were distributed to the following organizations in 2017/2018: Benjamin's House; Birchwood Area Food Pantry; Boys and Girls Club of Barron County; Chetek Food Shelf; Cumberland Area Community Food Pantry; Family Enrichment Center; Kinship of Rice Lake and Cameron; Nature's Edge Therapy; Pink Ribbon Advocacy; Rice Lake Area Free Clinic; Ruby's Pantry; and The Salvation Army/The Family Warming Center.

The grant process for distributions was re-structured in 2011 to make grants more compliant with the Federal tax code, thus enabling RLCHF to contribute additional health care funding to the disadvantaged in the communities it serves. RLCHF funds cannot be used for operating expenses (e.g. salaries, building rental).

The Foundation's mission is to promote the physical, behavioral and social health of people in the greater Rice Lake area by supporting and partnering with health and wellness organizations. We believe that by helping organizations improve the health of individuals, families, and community systems, we can enhance the quality of life for the community as a whole.

This request must be submitted online at: www.rlchf.org.

Questions can be emailed to: BillieJo Peterson at swansonbi@mosaictelecom.net. Deadline for applications is August 6, 2018.

HSHS hospitals offer safety tips for fairs, festivals, outdoor concerts

Summers are synonymous with fairs, festivals, outdoor concerts and carnivals. Good music, tasty food, and fun rides and games at these events draw large crowds. Here are some tips from HSHS Sacred Heart and St. Joseph's hospitals on how to stay safe.

"It's important to wash your hands often. This is especially true after visiting animal enclosures, after using the restroom and before eating or drinking. If there is nowhere to wash your hands, bring hand sanitizers or disposable wipes to use," said HSHS Sacred Heart and St. Joseph's hospitals' Chief Physician Executive Dr. Erik Dickson.

Other important tips:

- Drink plenty of water – this is especially true if it is a hot day with high heat index and/or if any alcohol consumption occurs.
- If alcohol is available, use precaution. Don't take drinks from strangers and don't leave your drink unattended. Monitor your alcohol intake carefully. Since alcohol can dehydrate the body, it's important to drink as much (if not more) water than alcohol.

- Ensure you have suitable clothing for the weather conditions and the location of the event.
- Apply and reapply sunscreen with SPF 30 or greater, seek shade periodically, and wear sunglasses and a hat.

Food safety practices should be the same at fairs as they are at restaurants and at home. Before you buy food from a vendor at a fair or festival, consider the following:

- Does the vendor have a clean workstation and a sink for employees to wash their hands?
- Do the employees wear gloves/use tongs when handling food?
- Is there a permit noticeably posted?
- Does the vendor have refrigeration on site for raw ingredients or pre-cooked foods?

Genealogy Society Offers Certificates for Descendants of Barron County Pioneers

The Blue Hills Genealogical Society is sponsoring a Certificate program for people who have ancestors that lived in Barron County. The Pioneer Ancestor Certificate is awarded to applicants who can provide evidence that they are a descendant of someone who settled in Barron County prior to January 1, 1871.

The Century Ancestor Certificate is awarded to those who can provide evidence they are a descendant of someone who settled in Barron County 100 years or more prior to the application date.

"We are very excited about this program," said Blue Hills Genealogical Society president Gloria Dobberfuhl. "We hope many people will take the challenge to find their Barron County ancestors. Applicants don't have to live in Barron County currently. They just need to be descendants of a pioneer who settled here either before 1871 or 100 years ago."

How can you join the fun finding your Barron County ancestors? Applications can be found online at www.bhgsbc.org. Or you can contact the Blue Hills Genealogical Society-Barron County at 410 E. LaSalle Ave., Suite C, Barron, WI 53812. Details of essential evidence of descent are found in the application instructions. Each applicant submission is $10.

Now is the time to get started. Applications must be received by the Society by October 1. Awarded Certificates may be mailed to you or presented in person at the Society banquet in November.

Not only will you be recognized as a family with Barron County roots, but your information will become part of a database of information for researchers. "The more people I get to know in Barron County, the more I am convinced a vast majority of us are related either through birth or marriage," theorized Certificate chair Linda Adams. "What a wonderful program to help us learn what our roots are and who we're connected to. We encourage you to include a picture of your ancestor in his/her home environment with your application."

Need help with the project? The Blue Hills Genealogical Society members are glad to work with you. Just contact Linda Adams at P.O. Box 296, Cameron, WI 54822, 715-205-2860. You will catch the genealogy bug and gain a fulfilling new hobby. The Blue Hills Genealogical Society meets the second Monday of the month at the Barron Senior Center at 6:30 p.m. They maintain a resource library at 410 E. LaSalle Ave., Barron that is open to the public Mondays 2:00 – 5:00 p.m. Enter at the back door. If you have historical information about Barron County families that you would like to donate, the Society readily accepts items of genealogical value.

Students applying to UW two-year campuses have application fees waived

One-time waiver is intended to encourage more students to apply to college

University of Wisconsin System President Ray Cross has announced that application fees will be waived, effective immediately and through Sept. 7, for students applying to any of the 13 two-year UW Colleges campuses for the upcoming fall 2018 term. This is when the largest volume of applications to the UW Colleges are usually submitted.

"Waiving the application fee demonstrates our continued commitment to the access and affordability mission of these campuses," said President Cross. "During the transitional period of our restructuring, we want to reassure prospective students that all campuses remain open and we encourage them to apply and enroll."

As part of a restructuring initiative, the UW Colleges campuses will be joined with the System's four-year comprehensive and research institutions as branch campuses effective July 1, 2018, pending formal approval by the Higher Learning Commission later this month. A primary goal of the restructuring is to expand higher

WisDOR: On October 1, Out-of-State Sellers Will Be Required to Collect Sales Tax

Last month, the United States Supreme Court ruled in South Dakota v. Wayfair, Inc., a state can now require online and other remote sellers with no physical presence in that state to collect and remit the applicable sales or use tax on sales delivered into that state. Wisconsin will require collection beginning on October 1, 2018, consistent with existing Wisconsin statutes, which require all sellers to collect sales or use tax unless limited by federal law.

Standards for administering sales tax laws for online and other remote sellers will be provided by administrative rule. The rule will be consistent with the Court's decision in Wayfair, which approved a small seller exception for sellers who do not have annual sales of products and services into the state of (1) more than $100,000, or (2) 200 or more separate transactions.

Wisconsin businesses, especially Wisconsin small businesses, will no longer be operating at a competitive disadvantage to out-of-state competitors that will now be required to collect the tax.

The Wisconsin Department of Revenue is notifying businesses and tax practitioners about the changes resulting from the Wayfair decision. More information about online and remote sellers collecting sales tax is available on the department's website. <https://www.revenue.wi.gov/Pages/Businesses/remotesellers.aspx>

Emergency blood shortage: Red Cross issues urgent call for blood donors

Blood supply dwindles after donations lagged during Fourth of July holiday week

An emergency blood shortage is prompting the American Red Cross to issue an urgent call for eligible donors of all blood types – especially type O – to give now and help save lives.

The Red Cross escalated its call for blood and platelet donors after a difficult Independence Day week for donations. More than 550 fewer blood drives were organized by businesses and other community groups last week than during a typical week as individuals across the country celebrated the holiday and enjoyed summer activities. This could equate to as many as 15,000 fewer donations than needed, causing donations to now be distributed to hospitals faster than they come in.

“Each and every day, individuals across the country depend on blood and platelet donations for lifesaving treatments and emergency care, so it’s critical that people donate now to meet these needs,” said Cliff Numark, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. “Whether you’ve never donated or give a couple of times a year, you’re needed to give as soon as possible to help save patient lives. Yours may be the donation a patient is counting on.”

This need is especially critical for type O blood donors. Type O is the most in-demand blood type and often the first to be depleted from hospital shelves during a shortage. Type O negative is the universal blood type and what emergency room personnel reach for when there is no time to determine the blood type of patients in the most serious situations. Type O positive is the most common blood type and can be transfused to Rh-positive patients of any blood type.

How to help: To schedule an appointment to donate, use the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). The Red Cross has added about 6,500 additional appointment slots at donation centers and community blood drives across the country over the next few weeks to accommodate more donors. Donation appointments and completion of a RapidPass online health history questionnaire are encouraged to help reduce the time it takes to donate.

Who blood donations help: Because of generous donors, the Red Cross is able to provide blood products for patients like 9-month-old Krew Anderson. Krew is a happy, laid-back baby boy. His wide grin frames two tiny teeth. He likes to play with balloons and just experienced his first boat ride and fireworks show, but Krew has faced more challenges in the last four months than many people will experience in a lifetime.

In March, Krew was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukemia, a type of cancer that causes bone marrow to produce a large number of abnormal blood cells. Since then, he has gone through four rounds of chemotherapy and received 15 blood and platelet transfusions to date.

“The first time he got [a transfusion], I was just super nervous and didn’t know really what was happening,” said his mother, Stephanie Anderson. “Now, when he gets one, I’m like, ‘Yes, please, get him some blood to help him get more energy and back to normal.’”

Krew’s father, Richard Anderson, donated blood a couple of times a year prior to his son’s diagnosis, but after seeing Krew receive blood, he now plans to give as soon as he’s eligible again.

“For me, just knowing that if it happened to me, it can happen to anyone. I want to make sure there’s enough blood out there for everyone, and that there’s no shortage,” he said.

Missing Types sees encouraging increase in new donors – all donors needed now: Facing a decline of about 80,000 new Red Cross blood donors each year for the past several years, the Red Cross launched the Missing Types campaign in June to encourage new donors, and those who have not given recently, to donate blood. While the campaign has already inspired thousands of new donors to give, the Red Cross is now calling on all eligible blood and platelet donors to roll up a sleeve as soon as possible to overcome the emergency blood shortage.

Through the Missing Types campaign, which runs throughout the summer, the letters A, B and O – letters used to identify blood types

Grinding Away!

Despite some recent heavy rains work remains on schedule in the Wickre Circle project. Work should be substantially completed by Labor Day.

More Space!

Crews have been hard at work building a 30,000 square foot addition for Ardisam in the Industrial Park. The new space will mainly be used for inventory storage. Work is expected to be completed in October.

Be sure to wash your hands after petting animals at the fair

Fair season is under way! The Barron County Department of Health & Human Services reminds everyone to wash their hands after touching animals. Washing your hands helps you stay healthy any time you come in contact with animals or their environment.

Common times you should wash your hands:

- After touching animals or their living area
- After leaving the animal area
- After taking off clothes or shoes that were worn in areas where animals were present

- After going to the bathroom
- Before preparing food
- Before eating or drinking
- Any other time your hands may have picked up germs

Washing your hands is a quick and effective way to decrease your chance of getting sick. There are five easy steps to washing your hands.

The five simple steps to proper handwashing are:

1) WET your hands with clean, running water, turn off the tap, and apply soap. 2) LATHER your hands by rubbing them together with the soap.

a. Be sure to lather the backs of your hands, between your fingers, and under your nails.

3) SCRUB your hands for at least 20 seconds.

4) RINSE your hands well under clean, running water.

5) DRY your hands using a clean towel or air dry them.
